

WELCOME TO THE FIRST EDITION OF OUR NEW & IMPROVED NEWSLETTER!

Our goal is to keep you informed about Ag Performance while also providing product and market education. This edition will give you an introduction to Ag Performance and our newsletter contributors.

Who we are:

At Ag Performance, our mission is to partner with farmers to benefit their farming operations. We strive to offer growers innovative financial and agronomic services to manage risk while maximizing each farmer's profitability.

Our growers are essential to the Midwest, the United States and the world economies. Farming can be very rewarding but it also comes with risk. We understand the financial impact and importance of nutritionally balanced soils, purchasing inputs at reasonable costs, the selection of high yielding hybrids and the marketing of grain in a systematic format. We take pride in offering our business concepts and production experience to our partners to maximize reward and minimize risk.

I have worked in various capacities at Ag Performance since 2001. I grew up on our family farm near Buffalo Center and have been actively farming with my husband

David for over 30 years. We have 2 grown children, twin daughters that are both married that live and work in the Buffalo Center area. I spend hours each week reading multiple marketing opinions and researching the most accurate and updated weather forecasts and outlooks.

Some of the many Products & Services we offer:
